WHAT IS ACUPUNCTURE THERAPY

Acupuncture treats the whole person, body and mind and not just the symptoms and thus helps to improve the body's health, equilibrium and well being.

Acupuncture was developed in China over 2500 ago and is becoming increasingly popular in the West as a natural healing therapy.

The World Health Organisation has listed a large number of conditions that have been effectively treated with acupuncture in clinical trials. These include: Anxiety, Back Pain, Chronic Fatigue, Chronic Pain, Cystitis, Depression, Female Fertility, PMS, Frozen Shoulder, Headaches, Insomnia, IBS, Menopausal Symptoms, Migraines, Nausea, Rheumatoid Arthritis, Sciatica, Sinusitis, Sports Injuries and Stress.

Not only can Traditional Chinese Medicine (Acupuncture) be effective in treating many conditions, often a sense of wellbeing is felt following just a short course of treatment, because the whole person is taken into account when diagnosing and treating holistically, aiming to treat the root cause of conditions as well as the main symptoms.

Traditional Acupuncture can therefore play an important part in promoting physical and emotional harmony and helping patients to look and feel rejuvenated.
